

Success of Management is Stimulation of Human Factor

ABDULLA MADALIEV*

Abstract

Challenges to society cannot be solved without clear, coherent, and creative human activities. Consider and analyze human factors. People need a conscious activity, the true passion that will result through the application effort and spiritual confidence. All of these can be carried out within the framework of the regional local governments. In the national economy the radical transformations are going in the structural, investment, organizational-economic fields. Aim is to build the social stable, strong democratic legal and civil society. For achieving this it is required to do certain work in political economic and spiritual spheres and in this work is to be leaned against the life experience of the people, its national and spiritual traditional.

I. Introduction

THE COMPLETE ACTIVITY of the market economy depends on functioning of a market gear. The management is considered one of the main components of a market economy. In all times it was considered important to reach a direction of the market towards definite aims.

Activation of the human factor in the socio-economic sphere of society is the development of democracy. This activation is particularly important in the economies of democracy. This activation is particularly important in the economies of developing countries. Thus developed different ways of development, created a basis for strategic planning. In other words, the activity of the human factor is determined by the participation of every citizen in the state and public administration, the level of his consciousness and culture. In this regard, the process of liberalization and democratization in the socio-

There is lack of interrelations cooperation between them. Therefore it makes a sense to the public self government to take up this most urgent question.

It is great importance to unceasingly update and renew the manufacturing goods and productions. In this direction the paramount task of the association is creation of innovations. It is necessary wider to take into consideration opinions and advices of the workers, experts and scientists in the decision of problems of the social economic life. You see, public wisdom and strengthening of the public factors, initiative and entrepreneurship of the labour collectives are great opportunities, reserves on increasing of the production efficiency.

The creation of such structure for development of the national economy and increase of well-being of the people has certain significance. To put in action all ways of the productive force changes in economy in a root to the positive direction, and creates opportunity for transition on rails of civilized development. For the complex decision of social economic problems of a region, the best approach is to increase of role and responsibility of local self-Management.

Advantage of the local self-management is, that each problem and task is decided wholly, taking into account local conditions and it is translated in to reality by legal means, i.e. all directions of development is covered and taken into account.

The main requirement for management of the association is fast adaptation to the new condition of the life. It should be able to take urgent and perfect decision in any situations, to increase a role of the human factor on production, increase quality of products, to use productions and areas effective manners.

Overcoming of taken problems and the prompt increase of well-being of the people needs to develop on large scale in to economic and administrative measures, to determine investment directions and to concentrate forces and resources. Participation of self-government on social and economic development of administrative regions has a number of advantages and positive motives, as the association organizes its activity with people. Which of them has small importance of the inadmissibility of any possible and negative feature as corruption and bribery etc? Because, of the association carries out its all activity with the people, in conditions of people supervision.
